

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

CHAD BILBREY,

No. C 09-3399 MHP

Plaintiff,

MEMORANDUM & ORDER

v.

Re: Motion to Dismiss pursuant to FRCP
12(b)(6)

RELIANCE STANDARD INS. CO., MATRIX
ABSENCE MGMT., INC., GROUP
WELFARE BENEFIT PLAN, and LAM
RESEARCH CORP.

Defendants.

Chad Bilbrey (“plaintiff”) filed this action against Reliance Standard Insurance Co. (“Reliance”), Matrix Absence Management Inc. (“Matrix”), Group Welfare Benefit Plan (“Plan”) and Lam Research Corp. (“LAM”) (collectively “defendants”) pursuant to the Employment Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (“ERISA”), 29 U.S.C. §§ 1001 et seq. Plaintiff seeks long-term disability (“LTD”) benefits that he alleges were improperly withheld under his LTD plan, removal of Reliance and Matrix as Plan fiduciaries and statutory penalties for defendants’ failure to provide relevant materials upon request. Defendants move to dismiss portions of the First Amended Complaint (“FAC”), asserting that Matrix is not a proper defendant and that plaintiff’s second and third causes of action fail to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Having considered the parties’ arguments and submissions, the court enters the following memorandum and order.

BACKGROUND

The following facts are alleged in the first amended complaint. Plaintiff was employed by LAM from March 2000 until July 2003. Docket No. 38 (FAC) ¶¶ 8 & 17. LAM paid premiums to Reliance for disability insurance coverage; coverage for which plaintiff became eligible in January 2003. Id. ¶¶ 9 & 10. Plaintiff was involved in a motor vehicle collision in 2002 and was thereafter treated by a chiropractor and an orthopaedic doctor for fibromyalgia, cephalgia and severe myofascial pain. Id. ¶¶ 11 & 12. Although plaintiff received disability payments from the State of California for approximately two months in 2003, id. ¶ 14, defendants denied his claim for LTD benefits in April 2004, id. ¶ 22. Plaintiff appealed the denial and defendants reversed their decision in February 2005, providing retroactive payment for a 24-month period. Id. ¶¶ 25 & 29. In July 2006, defendants denied plaintiff's subsequent appeal regarding the closure of his LTD claim. Id. ¶¶ 33 & 37. The very next month, plaintiff informed defendants that he intended to appeal this decision and requested materials to which he was entitled pursuant to ERISA. Id. ¶ 38. After receiving a partial claim file, plaintiff requested additional materials. Id. ¶ 39. Defendants failed to provide all requested materials. Id. ¶ 40.

Plaintiff filed this action seeking to recover benefits pursuant to 29 U.S.C. section 1132(a)(1)(B), removal of Reliance and Matrix as plan fiduciaries pursuant to both sections 1132(a)(2) and 1132(a)(3) and, pursuant to section 1132(c), penalties of at least $100 per day for defendants' failure to provide materials defined as relevant by ERISA. Plaintiff desires to be placed in the same position he would have been in had he timely been paid benefits to which he was allegedly entitled (what he describes as "make-whole" relief).

LEGAL STANDARD

Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(b)(6), a complaint may be dismissed against a defendant for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted against that defendant. A motion to dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) "tests the legal sufficiency of a claim." Navarro v. Block, 250 F.3d 729, 732 (9th Cir. 2001). "Dismissal can be based on the lack of a cognizable legal theory

1 or the absence of sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable legal theory.” Balistreri v. Pacifica
2 Police Dep’t, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1990). A motion to dismiss should be granted if a plaintiff
3 fails to plead “enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Bell Atl. Corp. v.
4 Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007). This “plausibility standard is not akin to a ‘probability 5 requirement,’ but it asks for more than a sheer possibility that a defendant has acted unlawfully.”
6 Ashcroft v. Iqbal, ___ U.S. ___, ___, 129 S.Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009) (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 7 556). “Determining whether a complaint states a plausible claim for relief . . . [is] a context-specific
8 task that requires the reviewing court to draw on its judicial experience and common sense.” Id.,
9 129 S.Ct. at 1950.

10 “[A]llegations of material fact are taken as true and construed in the light most favorable to 11 the non-moving party.” Cahill v. Liberty Mut. Ins. Co., 80 F.3d 336, 337-38 (9th Cir. 1996). The 12 court need not, however, accept as true pleadings that are no more than legal conclusions or the 13 “formulaic recitation of the elements of a cause of action.” Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. at 1949-50 (quoting 14 Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555); Spewell v. Golden State Warriors, 266 F.3d 979, 988 (9th Cir. 2001);
15 Clegg v. Cult Awareness Network, 18 F.3d 752, 754-55 (9th Cir. 1994). “[A] court may take judicial 16 notice of ‘matters of public record,’ ” Lee v. City of Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 688-89 (9th Cir.
17 2001) (quoting Mack v. South Bay Beer Distrib., 798 F.2d 1279, 1282 (9th Cir. 1986)), and may also 18 consider “documents whose contents are alleged in a complaint and whose authenticity no party 19 questions, but which are not physically attached to the pleading” without converting a motion to 20 dismiss under Rule 12(b)(6) into a motion for summary judgment, Branch v. Tunnell, 14 F.3d 449,
21 454 (9th Cir. 1994), overruled on other grounds by Galbraith v. County of Santa Clara, 307 F.3d
22 1119 (9th Cir. 2002). “The district court will not accept as true pleading allegations that are 23 contradicted by facts that can be judicially noticed or by other allegations or exhibits attached to or 24 incorporated in the pleading.” 5C Charles Alan Wright & Arthur R. Miller, Federal Practice &
25 Procedure § 1363 (3d. ed. 2004).

1 DISCUSSION

2 I. Matrix as a Proper Party

3 Defendants claim Matrix is not a proper party to this action. Actions pursuant to 29 U.S.C.
 4 section 1132(a)(1)(B) may be brought against an ERISA plan as an entity and against the plan's
 5 administrator. Ford v. MCI Commc'ns Corp. Health & Welfare Plan, 399 F.3d 1076, 1081 (9th Cir.
 6 2005) (citing 29 U.S.C. §§ 1132(d)(1) & 1132(a)(1)(B)); Everhart v. Allmerica Fin. Life Ins. Co.,
 7 275 F.3d 751, 754 (9th Cir. 2001). A claimant "may not sue the plan's insurer for additional ERISA
 8 plan benefits," Ford, 399 F.3d at 1081 (citing Everhart, 275 F.3d at 754), nor may ERISA claims
 9 "be brought against the claims administrator." Id. at 1083. ERISA defines a plan "administrator" as 10 "(i) the person specifically so designated by the terms of the instrument under which the plan is 11 operated; (ii) if an administrator is not so designated, the plan sponsor; or (iii) in the case of a plan
 12 for which an administrator is not designated and a plan sponsor cannot be identified, such other
 13 person as the Secretary may by regulation prescribe." 29 U.S.C. § 1002(16)(A). Therefore, the plan 14 administrator is generally determined by the language in the coverage documents. Both Ford and 15 Everhart suggest that a party cannot be deemed a de facto plan administrator based on the exercise
 16 of discretionary authority. See Ford, 399 F.3d at 1081-82 (expressly rejecting the argument that an 17 insurer, not designated the plan administrator in the plan documents, was a plan administrator
 18 "because it had discretionary authority to determine eligibility for benefits"); Everhart, 275 F.3d at 19 754 n.3 (rejecting the dissent's view that suits under 1132(a)(1)(B) "could be brought against a party
 20 that is neither the plan itself nor the plan administrator, but that makes 'the discretionary decisions as 21 to whether benefits were owed' " as contrary to cases in the Ninth and other circuits that limit such 22 suits to plans or plan administrators).

23 Plaintiff has alleged that Matrix is Reliance's "claims advisory agent and jointly and 24 severally acts as claims administrator." FAC ¶ 3. Plaintiff further alleges that Matrix has joint and 25 several "authority to manage the operation and administration of the ERISA plan at issue." Id.
 26 Although Plaintiff does not expressly allege that Matrix is the "Plan Administrator," plaintiff has 27 alleged that Matrix has administrative authority. A review of the Plan documents is necessary to 28

1 determine whether Matrix is a Plan Administrator. Defendants' motion to dismiss Matrix as a party
2 to plaintiff's section 1132(a)(1) claim is therefore denied as premature and the parties are ordered to
3 conduct additional discovery. As discussed at the hearing, defendants are to produce plaintiff's LTD
4 application, controlling Plan documents and contracts that explain the relationship between Matrix
5 and Reliance regarding the LTD plan at issue.¹ Plaintiff is ordered to amend his complaint by May 6 14, 2010. Defendants may then renew their motion to dismiss.

7 In contrast to 29 U.S.C. section 1132(a)(1)(B), claims filed pursuant to section
8 1132(a)(2)—plaintiff's second cause of action—are not limited to ERISA plans or ERISA plan
9 administrators. Rather, a claim may be brought pursuant to section 1132(a)(2) against "[a]ny person
10 who is a fiduciary with respect to a plan." 29 U.S.C. § 1109(a). Section 1002(21)(A) provides that 11 "a person is a fiduciary with respect to a plan to the extent (i) he exercises any discretionary 12 authority or discretionary control respecting management of such plan or exercises any authority or 13 control respecting management or disposition of its assets . . . or (iii) he has any discretionary 14 authority or discretionary responsibility in the administration of such plan." Plaintiff has alleged 15 that Matrix "jointly and severally has the authority to manage the operations and administration of 16 the ERISA Plan at issue here . . . because it exercises discretionary authority or control respecting 17 the management of the Plan." FAC ¶ 3. This allegation effectively mimics the statutory language
18 defining an ERISA fiduciary, and amounts to no more than the "formulaic recitation of the elements
19 of a cause of action." Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. at 1949-50 (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 555). As discussed 20 below, plaintiff's second cause of action is dismissed in its entirety, with leave to amend.

21 Plaintiff's third cause of action seeks removal of Reliance and Matrix as Plan fiduciaries
22 pursuant to 29 U.S.C. section 1132(a)(3). Section 1132(a)(3) authorizes a plan participant,
23 beneficiary or fiduciary to bring a civil action "(A) to enjoin any act or practice which violates any 24 provision of this subchapter or the terms of the plan, or (B) to obtain other appropriate equitable 25 relief (i) to redress such violations or (ii) to enforce any provisions of this subchapter or the terms of 26 the plan." As discussed above, since Matrix's role is unclear at this time, it is premature to dismiss
27 Matrix prior to review of the appropriate Plan documents.

Finally, a plan administrator may be liable to a plan participant or beneficiary for up to $100 per day when that administrator fails or refuses to comply with a request for any information which ERISA requires that the administrator furnish to that participant or beneficiary. 29 U.S.C. § 1132(c). ERISA defines a plan “administrator” as “(i) the person specifically so designated by the terms of the instrument under which the plan is operated; (ii) if an administrator is not so designated, the plan sponsor; or (iii) in the case of a plan for which an administrator is not designated and a plan sponsor cannot be identified, such other person as the Secretary may by regulation prescribe.” 29 U.S.C. § 1002(16)(A). The Ninth Circuit has held that liability under section 1132(c) must be limited “to the targets expressly identified by Congress in section 1002(16).” Moran v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 872 F.2d 296, 299 (9th Cir. 1989). Since Matrix’s role is currently unclear, it is premature to dismiss Matrix.

The court notes that defendants’ argument that plaintiff has admitted that Matrix is not a fiduciary by alleging that Reliance is a fiduciary is unavailing. Plaintiff alleges that Matrix and Reliance “jointly and severally” exercise discretionary authority. FAC ¶¶ 2 & 3. Also, ERISA contemplates that a plan may have multiple fiduciaries. See 29 U.S.C. § 1105(a) (“a fiduciary with respect to a plan shall be liable for a breach of fiduciary responsibility of another fiduciary with respect to the same plan in the following circumstances” (emphasis added)). Likewise, defendants’ argument that the Plan documents name Reliance as the “claims review fiduciary” does not preclude Matrix from otherwise serving as a Plan fiduciary.² See Kyle Rys, Inc. v. Pac. Admin. Servs. Inc., 990 F.2d 513, 518 (9th Cir. 1993) (“an insurer will be found to be an ERISA fiduciary if it has the authority to grant, deny, or review denied claims.” (emphasis added)).

II. Plaintiff’s Second Cause of Action

Plaintiff’s second cause of action seeks removal of Reliance and Matrix as Plan fiduciaries pursuant to 29 U.S.C. section 1132(a)(2). Section 1132(a)(2) authorizes a plan participant, beneficiary or fiduciary to bring a civil action for appropriate relief under section 1109. Section 1109 states that

A person who is a fiduciary with respect to a plan who breaches any of the responsibilities, obligations, or duties imposed upon fiduciaries by

1 this subchapter shall be personally liable to make good to such plan
2 any losses to the plan resulting from each such breach, and to restore
3 to such plan any profits of such fiduciary which have been made
4 through use of assets of the plan by the fiduciary, and shall be subject
5 to such other equitable or remedial relief as the court may deem 6 appropriate, including removal of such fiduciary.

7 29 U.S.C. § 1109(a).

8 Plaintiff alleges that defendants breached their fiduciary duties by failing to act for the 9 exclusive benefit of plan participants and beneficiaries. FAC ¶ 64. Section 1104(a)(1) provides that
10 “a fiduciary shall discharge his duties with respect to a plan solely in the interest of the participants
11 and beneficiaries and (A) for the exclusive purpose of: (i) providing benefits to participants and their 12 beneficiaries; and (ii) defraying reasonable expenses of administering the plan.” Plaintiff alleges
13 that defendants breached this duty by habitually failing both to act in accordance with the Plan
14 documents and to properly evaluate claims for benefits. Id. ¶ 66. Specifically, plaintiff alleges that 15 defendants created financial and other incentives for medical consultants to render opinions
16 favorable to defendants and used such medical consultants to deny claims based on false opinions.
17 Id. ¶¶ 67-68. Plaintiff further alleges that defendants Reliance and Matrix improperly reward
18 employees with incentives for terminating claims. Id. ¶ 72. Finally, plaintiff alleges, without 19 supporting details, that these actions injure the Plan and all of its participants. Id. ¶ 71.

20 Defendants claim that plaintiff, as an individual, lacks standing to bring his claim under 21 section 1132(a)(2). That section, however, unequivocally states that a participant or beneficiary may 22 bring an action for relief under section 1109. Indeed, according to the Supreme Court, “[t]here can 23 be no disagreement . . . that [section 1132(a)(2)] authorizes a beneficiary to bring an action against a
24 fiduciary who has violated [section 1109].” Mass. Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Russell, 473 U.S. 134, 140
25 (1985). However, “the draftsmen [of section 1109] were primarily concerned with the possible 26 misuse of plan assets, and with remedies that would protect the entire plan, rather than with the 27 rights of an individual beneficiary.” Id. at 142. “To find a breach of fiduciary duty based on a 28 denial of individual benefits, a plaintiff must allege that the denial is part of a ‘larger systematic breach of fiduciary obligations.’ ” Reynolds v. Fortis Benefits Ins. Co., C-06-6216, 2007 WL 484782, at *8 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 9, 2007) (Illston, J.) (quoting Russell, 473 U.S. at 147).

As both a Plan participant and beneficiary, plaintiff is authorized by section 1132(a)(2) to bring his second cause of action.³ Plaintiff's allegations include a "systematic breach of fiduciary duties" by defendants and the action is thus not precluded by Russell. However, plaintiff fails to substantiate this systematic breach. There are no specific allegations that the claims of other Plan beneficiaries were improperly denied by defendants. Indeed, plaintiff admitted during oral argument that there were no other known potential plaintiffs at this time. Consequently, the "formulaic recitation" that defendants engaged in a larger systematic breach of fiduciary obligations, without providing facts regarding the harm suffered by Plan participants other than plaintiff, requires dismissal. See Iqbal, 129 S.Ct. at 1949-50. Plaintiff's second cause of action is dismissed with leave to allege additional facts that support his allegation that defendants engaged in a systematic breach of fiduciary duty.⁴

III. Plaintiff's Third Cause of Action

Plaintiff's third cause of action seeks the removal of Reliance and Matrix as Plan fiduciaries pursuant to 29 U.S.C. section 1132(a)(3). Section 1132(a)(3) authorizes a plan participant, beneficiary or fiduciary to bring a civil action "(A) to enjoin any act or practice which violates any provision of this subchapter or the terms of the plan, or (B) to obtain other appropriate equitable relief (i) to redress such violations or (ii) to enforce any provisions of this subchapter or the terms of the plan." The Ninth Circuit has held that section 1132(a)(3) is a " 'catchall provision that acts as a safety net, offering appropriate equitable relief for injuries caused by violations that [29 U.S.C. § 1132] does not elsewhere adequately remedy.' " Ford, 399 F.3d at 1083 (quoting Great-West Life & Annuity Ins. Co. v. Knudson, 534 U.S. 204, 221 n.5 (2002)) (alteration and emphasis in original). Plaintiff also seeks " 'make-whole' relief" as part of his third cause of action. The court finds premature defendants' motion to dismiss the section 1132(a)(3) claim. The request for "make-whole relief" does not defeat the third cause of action to the extent plaintiff is referring to equitable relief.⁵ Plaintiff is ordered to amend the complaint, however, to clarify the scope of "make-whole relief."

1 IV. Plaintiff's Fourth Cause of Action

2 Defendants state in the "Conclusion" of their moving papers that "Reliance is not a proper
3 party for a claim under ERISA for penalties." Docket No. 52 (Mot.) at 7. Defendants expand on 4 this statement in their reply brief, stating that Reliance is not designated the Plan Administrator and
5 is thus not subject to penalties under 29 U.S.C. section 1132(c). Docket No. 57 (Reply) at 6.
6 However, plaintiff has alleged that Reliance is the Plan Administrator. FAC ¶ 2. Defendants'
7 argument is better suited to a motion for summary judgment. See Cady v. Anthem Blue Cross Life &
8 Health Ins. Co., 583 F.Supp. 2d 1102, 1108 (N.D. Cal. 2008) (Wilken, J.) ("If the evidence
9 demonstrates that [defendant] is not in fact the administrator designated in the plan's instrument,
10 [defendant] may move for summary judgment."). Defendants' motion to dismiss plaintiff's section
11 1132(c) claim against Reliance is denied as premature.⁶

12
13 CONCLUSION

14 Defendants' motion to dismiss is DENIED in part and GRANTED in part. The parties are 15 ordered to conduct additional discovery and plaintiff is ordered to amend his complaint prior to May 16 14, 2010, at which time defendants may renew their motion to dismiss.

17 IT IS SO ORDERED.

ENDNOTES

1. Parties may also conduct limited reasonable discovery regarding the appropriate standard of review.
2. Plaintiff's objections to the declarations of D. Rhodes and Karen McGill are denied as moot.
3. ERISA defines a "participant" as "any employee or former employee of an employer . . . who is or may become eligible to receive a benefit of any type from an employee benefit plan which covers employees of such employer . . . , or whose beneficiaries may be eligible to receive any such benefit." 29 U.S.C. § 1002(7). ERISA defines a "beneficiary" as "a person designated by a participant, or by the terms of an employee benefit plan, who is or may become entitled to a benefit thereunder." Id. § 1002(8).
4. If plaintiff is able to later allege a section 1132(a)(2) violation, the principles of relation back would likely apply for statute of limitations purposes.
5. The court will not duplicate remedies across plaintiff's overlapping claims.
6. Plaintiff has voluntarily withdrawn his claim for future benefits. Docket No. 55 (Opp.) at 9.
